

Keele SU Elections – Candidate Guidebook

Please note these rules are subject to change as Lockdown restrictions are made clear.

There's no doubt the Keele SU Elections will be different this year, but we're confident that we can still deliver an exciting, engaging and fair election. Whilst we won't see physical campaigns from candidates, there will still be plenty of opportunities for students to get to know candidates and their ideas. The election will be entirely online, with all associated events such as training, results and candidate question time hosted online. We'll be sharing tips and guidance throughout the election period.

About the Keele SU Elections

Keele SU is proud to be a democratic organisation that puts students at the heart of everything it does. Keele SU is run by students, for students and every year we hold a number of elections to ensure students are able to stand and vote in these elections.

First of all, thank you for taking an interest in these elections! Whether you've put yourself forward for a position or you're just thinking about running, we hope you find all you need in this guide.

The Keele SU Elections run on an annual cycle, with elections happening around these times:

February – The Keele SU Full-Time Officer Elections.

Here we elect all Full Time Officer positions. Once elected, these officers will begin their term on July 1st of that calendar year.

May – The Keele SU Part-Time Officer Elections

In this election, we elect all Part Time Officer positions, except Postgraduate Students' Officer. Once elected, these officers will begin their term on July 1st of that calendar year.

November – The Keele SU Autumn By-Elections

In this election we elect any unfilled Part Time officer positions along with Delegates for NUS Conference. Once elected, these officers will begin their terms immediately.

All Students' Unions are expected to run fair and democratic elections and to ensure that our elections give all students a fair chance to participate, there are a number of election regulations that we abide by. A small team of staff and students are in charge of ensuring that election regulations are not broken and that all students are given a fair opportunity to participate in the elections.

RO (Returning Officer): Official head of the Elections. At Keele, this person is an NUS representative and is generally only contacted if there is a very serious rule breach or threat to the integrity of the elections. The DRO deputises for the RO as outlined in the constitution.

DRO (Deputy Returning Officer): Running elections from the Keele side, is responsible for most of the operational aspects of the elections and ensures candidates abide by the election regulations.

Elections Officials: KeeleSU staff members who assist the DRO in all aspects of running of the elections. The Elections officials are able to issue sanctions in the absence of the DRO.

EF (Electoral Forum): Electoral Forum consists of 3 Union Council Members. They ensure the D.R.O is acting fairly and that the regulations are being met.

Who is who in this election?

Returning Officer: Peter Robertson, NUS Deputy Chief Executive

Deputy Returning Officer: Liam Searle, Student Voice Coordinator

Election Officials: Aysha Panter, Student Engagement Coordinator

How these Elections work

All students at Keele can participate in these elections. Some positions are reserved for specific 'types' of students and you must identify accordingly in order to stand or vote in that specific election. Positions which have specific requirements are stated in the 'Positions Available' section.

All Keele SU elections are run online. You submit your nomination, manifesto and vote on the Keele SU website. Each available position will have a separate ballot which will list candidates in a randomised order. We use Single Transferable Vote here at Keele SU, which is where voters are able to preference candidates. To see a really simple explanation of STV watch this video:

How to write a Manifesto

You'll be shown how to create your manifesto at candidates briefing.

Your manifesto is your opportunity to convince students to give you their vote. Most students voting in the Keele SU Elections won't know you personally, so you need to explain who you are, why you are standing and what you hope to achieve.

Manifesto Format

Manifestos can be written after nominating yourself for a role. You have a limit of 1000 words to use but we highly encourage you to stick to no more than 500-750 tops - there are a lot of roles available so think about how many manifestos voters will have to read! You're welcome to format this in any way you like, but below we've included some guidance on key details you may want to include.

- About you - write a bit about yourself, the role you're running for, your time at Keele, so students know who you are!
- Why you're running - Tell students about why you're running, why they should vote for you, your qualities that you believe would make you a good elected officer, and some of the things related to the role that matter to you.
- Up to three key priorities – You can talk in detail here about the specific areas of work you wish to focus on, should you be elected. These could be campaigns, pledges or simply issues you will work on. You don't need to include three but you shouldn't include any more.

See an example here! (please note – we would highly recommend going into more detail than this!)

Tips on Content:

Consider the role you want to run for – why do you want this role and why do you think you're a suitable candidate.

What are your interests – Do you have any suitable experience that you should mention?

Think about the Union in its entirety - What in your opinion should be the objectives for Keele SU? Whilst you may want to make a lot of your manifesto relevant to the role you're running for, first and foremost, you'll be an elected officer of Keele SU. Think about what makes Keele SU unique and how can you ensure or enhance this?

Don't be afraid to criticise the SU or the University if you are able to evidence problems and present solutions to them. Manifestos should strive for improvements for students. Be careful though, an overly negative manifesto may discourage some students from voting for you. Also consider that if elected, you'll be working with these people regularly.

Pumpkin

ABOUT ME
I am a 3 year old springer spaniel named Pumpkin. I enjoy going on walks, and playing catch, as well as trying to eat leaves. I also enjoy sleeping on people and I don't like being washed after muddy walks. My owner studies Environmental Science, so I've eaten some textbooks on solar energy in my time.

WHY I'M RUNNING!
I spend lots of time playing catch and eating leaves, which shows I care very much about sport and healthy living. This will make me a great AU and Sport Officer and is why you should vote for me. I also love people which means I will be good at caring about their issues and being a representative. I also care a lot about higher education from my experience of being the pet dog of a student. I like going on walks, which means I'll be out and about speaking to students, or at least looking at them in the hope they have a tennis ball.

- MY PRIORITIES
1. More tennis balls
 2. Making Keele campus a dog-friendly atmosphere
 3. Encouraging healthy eating, mainly through vegetation like leaves
 4. People like spinach - that's a kind of leaf?
 5. Even more tennis balls!

Think about what will stand out, this could be a phrase, a pledge or a quote. Students will have an awful lot of manifestos to read, and many will only read a small section so ensure you are able to summarise your manifesto.

Know your audience – Remember who will be reading your manifesto and pitch it accordingly. Students may turn off at overly political language but will also recognise a badly written manifesto. Make it straightforward and relevant.

Do your research – Don't just assume what students want and what issues they face. Use available research such as the National Student Survey and speak to staff and officers about what students are concerned about. If your manifesto is filled with relevant and current issues, you're going to gain more votes.

Length

Part time candidates recommended length: 500 – 750 words

Full time candidates recommended length: 750 - 1000 words

If you have more to say then feel free to add links in your manifesto. This could be your own website, a blog, social media or a video. None of these things are limited by manifesto regulations (but they are obviously still limited by the main election regulations)

Hyperlinks

Feel free to add links to websites and social media throughout your manifesto. You can make words and pictures into links. You need to add your links to the form and let us know what you'd like hyperlinking. You can link to any website or social media account as long as it's yours and as long as it's not dodgy.

Pictures

You are able to add as many pictures, but these should be to add to the manifesto, the main content should all appear as text.

The problem with pictures is that they may appear differently on certain devices, can be so large that they slow load up and are not compatible with screen readers. Wanna add a gif? Go ahead - you upload these like a normal image.

Campaigning

Campaign Team

Some candidates choose to recruit a campaign team. These are people who will help you share your message on social media, and spread the word about your campaign. Remember: you don't have to have a campaign team to win!

If you do choose to have a campaign team, here are some tips on how to utilise them.

Delegate jobs – Find out the skillset of your campaign team (such as social media or design) and use them accordingly.

Inform your team – Make sure they know about your policies and that they are able to answer questions about you and your manifest. Even better, get them involved in coming up with ideas for policies.

Ensure they're aware of the rules and regulations as well as any changes that take place.

Meet frequently with your team (not in person, obviously!) during campaigning to find out what is going well and what sort of feedback they are getting from students.

Where to Campaign Online

- Social Media

Utilise social media as it's probably where you'll gain the most exposure - especially this time! The Election Regulations apply to social media. You are permitted to purchase adverts through social media as long as you account for this in your campaign budget. Use public forums such as the 'Student Life Page' and Instagram. Also think about using Snapchat to send out vote reminders. Don't get drawn into arguments on social media (and don't feed the trolls...).

Please be aware that due to increased attention on political campaigning by Facebook, a number of social media sites (including Facebook and Instagram) are a lot more restrictive of what it deems political campaigning. Unfortunately this has caught up student elections as well, so you may find that paid adverts may not work if Facebook thinks you're a political campaign group.

- Website

If you feel you've more to say than what's on your manifesto, then why not create your own website? This way you can show off any web design skills. If you purchase a web domain then you must account for this in your budget but we recommend using a free service. You are welcome to link to your website in your manifesto.

- Emails

If you plan on sending out emails then remember that you cannot use any special relationships or privileges. For example, if you're a SVR then you should not use your email privileges as other candidates may not have access to this.

Your Budget

All candidates will be given a budget to spend on their election campaign. This budget is as follows:

£5 – Part-time officer candidates

You are not permitted to exceed your election budget or spend ANY of your own money. Overspending your budget WILL result in a sanction.

You can spend your money however you want* - as long as you are able to provide receipts for your purchases.

Print

If you are ordering print through our shopping list, you will need to provide us with files to send to the Keele Print House (formerly known as Printshop). These must be in JPEG, Word or (ideally) PDF format. Any print from the Print House will be automatically taken from your budget; you won't need to provide receipts. Just fill out this shopping list and send it to l.r.searle@keele.ac.uk before the print deadline (12 midday on November 4th).

For any additional print options not listed on the shopping list, such as flyers, you are able to arrange your own printing. Receipts should be provided for ANY printing costs. For this reason, we recommend professional print shops rather than printing at home or in the library.

Special Discounts and Offers

You are able to take advantage of offers that are available to ALL candidates such as online sales, discounts and offers however you CANNOT use discounts that are only available to you. This might include using loyalty points, special relationships (ie, 'mates rates') and members only deals and discounts (unless any candidate could freely and easily become a member).

Things you already own

Every year candidates ask if they can use something they already own to help with their campaign such as musical instruments and fancy dress items. You are permitted to use your personal items, within reason, to aid your campaign providing they are not bought especially for the elections.

Note from the DRO: We ain't reimbursing you for anything illegal. Or alcohol...or the ingredients to brew it...*

Note from the DRO: If you own something ridiculously outlandish such as a helicopter or a pet velociraptor then we probably won't let you use that for your campaign.*
