
So you haven't been elected...

What's Next?

- Interested in working in the Student Movement? There's lots of jobs out there in hundreds of Students' Unions up and down the country. Lots of people start as interns or coordinators in Voice and Opportunities roles - and you've already got great experience in this area! Head over to the su.careers website to see a number of exciting opportunities.
- Want to work at Keele? Keele University employs lots of graduates and other universities advertise at jobs.ac.uk.
- Keele also runs the 'Keele Internships' schemes with a variety of different organisations.
- Want to continue studying at Keele? Keele graduates do get a fee discount on Postgraduate study, but you should only do this if you're passionate about your subject! If you're already a PG student, look out for the KPA elections coming up soon where there are more full-time officer positions up for election.
- Want a job representing people? Perhaps you stood because you're passionate about representation. Many politically engaged Keele students have gone on to work for local MPs or with trade unions.
